I read the five words over and over again, but could not fathom their meaning I was painfully certain, in my own mind that some other terrible calamity of some kind or other would happen before long, and that I read my warning on the piece of paper I held in my hand. I kept my eyes fixed on him for some time; but nature at length ruled, and I fell asleep-not into a sound slumber, but into a troubled, fretful series of dozes of an unrefreshing feverish character. I was aroused by the train slackening speed, and on looking out of the window found we had arrived at Nettleton junction and I was the only occupant of the carriage! Hastily gathering my traps together, I got out of the haunted carriage, and inquired of a porter if my uncle had sent over any conveyance for me. Yes, there was the dog-cart. Before leaving the station I asked the station-master if he was sure that the train from which I had just alighted was the express from town? "Yes sir," was his answer, "through from London Bridge." What an awful ride I had en that dark Christmas eve! At every turn of the road I thought we should be overturned; whenever the horse improved his pace I made up my mind that he had bolted; but, in spite of my fears, we arrived safely at the Nettleton House, and received a hearty welcome, as of yere.

All agreed that I was looking far from well. "Bless the boy," said my aunt, ghost." I stammered out something about the closeness of London, and went up stairs to dress for dinner.

How I got through the meal I have very little idea. Bessie must have thought me very stupid, for I made few remarks, and answered her questions in monosyllables. There was to be a dance-as usual-in the evening, and I was engaged, of course, to Bessie for the opening quadrille; but I made so many foolish blunders, and, as my sweetheart told me, looked so very unwell, that I was fain to leave off. "Come into this room, dear," Bessie said; "it is cooler there and more quiet." We entered. I started back with a look of horror on my face; for there, by the mantel-shelf, stood my mysterious railway

So my ghost vanished with the explana-tion. I shook him warmly by the hand, and, with the assistance of my Bessie, informed him of my doubts and fears, at which he laughed heartily. My spirits soon returned, and by the time the last dance was announced no one was happier than myself. Then as to Kellogg, who claims to have been elected Governor. The Constitution of Louisiana provides that no member of Congress, or person holding office under the United States, shall be eligible to the office of "Governor or Lieutenant-Governor." Kellogg was a candidate for Governor and a member of Congress at the same time: the vote for Governor had never been counted; the result had not been officially proclaimed; yet he goes into the Federal Court and sues for an office to which he is ineligible, before the vote has been declared against him.

Matters of Interest Before the Legis lature-Constitutional Amendments-The Usury Laws-The Public Printing-The New York, Norfolk over's Interests-The State Debt-Death of Republicanism.

RALEIGH, Dec. 13, 1872. DEAR JOURNAL :- Several important measures have occupied the attention of the Legislature during the week. On Thursday the bill of amendments to the Constitution was taken up, and after some skirmishing, was referred to the Joint Select Committee on Constitutional Reform, with instructions to report on or before the 17th of this month, whether in the opinion of the Committee the amendments can be separated, or whether the bill must be acted upon as a whole, and passed or rejected without any change. If the Committee shall be of opinion that the amendments can be separated, then it is further instructed to report the amendments back to the Senate separately, on or before the 16th of January. The prospect is, therefore, that before the recess is taken, we shall know the fate of Constitutional Admendments. The New York, Norfolk and Charles-The Radicals do not seem to be acting together in regard to the amendments. Mr. Grandy, one of the Radical Senators from the first disrtrict, has announced his purpose to oppose any change in the present Constitution. It suits him just as it is; other Radical members of the Legislature, however, very fortunately for the good of the State, are of a different opinion upon the question of the right of the Legislature to reparate the amendments. Legal gentlemen differ in epinion. Some of our most distinguished lawyers and jurists of the old | bill and to be heard upon its merits, if they school, are of the very decided belief that so desired. Mr. Moore, of Martin, who is the Legislature has the right to treat the proposed amendment to each distinct part of to any postponement and urged immediate the Constitution as a separate bill. of place to remark that separating several distinct independent amendments to independent parts of the Constitution, which have been put together in one bill, is quite a different thing from altering or changing any particular amendment proposed to any one part of the Constitution. Washington, Dec. 14.

President Grant to-day received by telegraph a copy of the memorial of the citizens' committee of New Orleans, setting forth their grievances. This memorial was soon after placed in the hands of Attorney General Williams. Information that the committee will stirt for Washington (probably to day) was also received, but judging from what was said this morning by Attorney General Williams, their mission will be futile, as the General Government is inflexibly fixed in its determination to support the Pinchback State government.

Drs. J. Miles Hunter & Tew:
Gentlemen—After frequent application of various articles of the "Materia Medica," to the malignant cancerous growth on my neck, I applied your "Cancer Remedy," (which was kindly furnished me by Dr. Hunter) according to directions, and it disappeared within ten days, leaving no cleatrice.

The pain produced by its application, to my surprise, was insignificant.

Your obliged friend,

> BUENA VISTA, P. O., N. C., March 1872. In the early part of the present month I applied to Messrs, Hunter & Tew, seeking relief for the suffering, occasioned by an encysted tumor which had located itself in my mouth between the cheek and jaw. After a short time it was successfully removed, and I am at present enjoying the blessing of being free from pain for the first time in two years. I bear cheerful testimony to the success of these gentlemen as exhibited in my case.

MARRIAGE GUIDE. EVERY ONE HIS OWN DOCTOR—Being a private instructor for married persons, or those about to be married, both male and female, in everything concerning the physiology and relation of our sexual system, and the production and prevention of offspring, meluding all the new discoveries never before given in the English language, by WM. YOUNG, M. D. This is really a valuable and interesting work. It is written in plain language for the general reader, and is illustrated with numerous Engravings. All young married people, or those contemplating marriage, and having the least impediment to married life, should read this book. It discloses secrets that every one should be acquainted with; still it is a book that must be locked up and not let lie about the house. It will be sent to any address on receipt of 50 cents. Address Dr. WM. YOUNG, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia.

AFFLICTED AND UNFORTUNATE. -No matter what may be your disease, before you place yourself under the care of any of the QUACKS-native and foreign-who advertise in this or any other paper, get a copy of Dr Young's Book and read it carefully. It will be roung's Book and read it carefully. It will be the means of saving you many a dollar, your health, and possibly your life. Dr. Young can be consulted on any of the diseases described in his publications by mail or at his office, No. 416 Spruce street, above Fourth, Philadelphia. sept 20
